Aldo Leopold is credited with saying that when one has an ecological education one lives in a world of scars. The scars are highlighted in our work, but it has been really great to work in a place where the healthy land dominates the scars. It has been rewarding, though of somewhat questionable efficacy, to work in a program intended to maintain that healthy land. I hope I can cap my career by protecting one of the last great ecosystems on our earth (Bristol Bay of course).

Phil -
Thanks! I'll edit the slides to reflect your info.

I'll send you my photos from the pre-weekend too. You live in a very beautiful place!

Cheers,

Rachel
